New Perspectives on Contraception

by Donald DeMarco, PhD

Examining contraception from ten perspectives, Dr. DeMarco illuminates how contraception separates people from their spouses, from God, and even from their own best interests. He poignantly probes the ideas of choice, personhood, suffering, reality, and love.

Why Contraception Matters

by Stephen Patton

Practically speaking, widespread use of contraception has led directly to massive increases of divorce and abortion. Personal union and yearning for fertility are written physically into the structure of sexual relations, and shutting down one of these aspects hurts the whole relationship.

Reaching the Cafeteria Catholic

by Patty Schneier

A Catholic wife and mother delivers a passionate plea to priests to be very straightforward with the Church's teachings on marriage and family. She tells how her marriage and her faith were burdened by contraception for 13 years and describes the wonderful freedom and growth in her marriage (and her relationship with God) since God helped her turn around.
